Apply for an In-Service Training grant funded by the European Commission's new Lifelong Learning Programme (LLP) and attend an interesting training course in Berlin

The main objective of this course is an increased awareness of perspectives of inclusion in educational settings with the focus on gender stereotypes in a binary gender system, heteronormativity and homophobia.

The course uses a variety of methodologies focusing on interactive and cooperative learning activities. There will be a mix of workshop-based working and lectures or presentations with discussions. Most of the sessions will be workshop-based involving awareness raising activities, individual reflection, pair work, small group activities, peer teaching sessions, simulations, role playing, discussions and practical training practises. Video clips are used to illustrate and deepen aspects of gender competence and diversity competence. During excursions and field work gender stereotypes in the public space are examined.
